Description

Beautiful and wellcoming emblazoned house from the XVIII century located in the old town, near the Cathedral of Jerez.

The house has two floors with a very cool patio that distributes the various rooms of the house. As we move forward we meet with surprises such as the beautiful centenary tile of a crowned lion. A little later we find a charming corner with sherry boots that still have wine from the family cellar, a library with a collection of old books and a lounge with original hydraulic brick floor.

From the patio two staircases lead to first floor, one to the masters area accessed by an enclosed gallery with wooden windows painted in white.

The other old stone staircase leads to the attic rooms of the house where we can find the sculpture study of one of the current owners.

In the kitchen area there is a beautiful and cozy courtyard garden where there are ladies night, jasmine and stephanotis which give a special flavor to the views of the angel on the Cathedral of Jerez.

For golf enthusiasts, there are several courses near Jerez, Vista Hermosa, Monte Enmedio, La Ballena ...
