Description

This is an exceptional house, built in 1948 by the regionalist architect Ricardo Espiau.

It has three floors (ground+ two) and is located in the Avenida de La Palmera, Seville. It has been a family home but it could be used as an office or other professional uses.

The house has a great personality and is in good working order. It is very cheerful in the morning when it receives the light of the rising sun, and in the afternoon, on the façade on the west.

Large but with beautifull private spots whereyou can sit and relax.

The garden is very livable and also bright with sunny sides, making it very pleasant especially in autumn and winter.

Available immediately.
