The entrance leads to a series of courtyards and gardens that give an almost medieval air. The house has many charming corners but especially highlights the courtyards and garden with bitter Seville oranges, inspired by the Royal Alcázar of Seville.

The main courtyard has pretty different light arches supported by Tuscan columns on the ground floor and Corinthian on the top. From here you can access different spaces: living rooms, dining, main apartment with office, bedroom, dressing room and bathroom, service area ... Above is the bedroom area of the family.

The remodeling of this house lasted three years and ended ten years ago. Prevailed recover the original house air using vintage materials and seeking comfort. The success was complete. The result is a success.

Impress the total absence of noise still the heart of the Barrio de Santa Cruz being. Basically what you hear are birds singing
